Though we know more about the human reproductive process than any generation before, the miraculous nature of birth has not changed. That ageless feeling of awe associated with childbearing is the background for this morning's Torah portion. Ancient civilization transformed normal healthy body functions into matters of spiritual purity. They understood then, as we do today, having a child is more than a biological expression.

Join us after services today for Kiddush sponsored by Norma Laine in memory of her daughter, Susan Laine. Thank you.
