It is a great pleasure to welcome Rev. Dave Carpenter of Brentwood Presbyterian Church as he joins us in song, psalm, and word.

For the first time since the events at the Reed Sea, the Torah tells a story of almost divine proportions. Restless over the absence of visible leadership, uncertain of the true meaning of the theophany, the golden calf is fashioned for worship. Taking matters into their own hands, a physical image is made. Later Jewish tradition blames the idol's creation on the "mixed multitude" which left Egypt along with the Israelites. The text, in no way, supports that notion. The incident left deep scars on the memory of our people. Nothing would be quite the same thereafter. The Midrash says that all of the ills which have befallen the Jewish People since that time are traceable to the sin of the golden calf.
